

Guide to using the System

What is System X2?

System X2 is a mathematically based football (soccer) forecasting service that operates in leagues all over the world all year round. It works by using specialised algorithms to analyse various aspects of form on a continuous basis to deliver up predictions in those leagues.

It specialises in predicting away wins or draws – i.e. the home team to drop points. These predictions are referred to as ‘picks’.

The system has a success rate consistently over 70%.

The unique difference between the system and every other forecasting service on the internet is that the system does not forecast the result of every game taking place in a given league on a given date. Picks are generated by the result of the mathematical analysis.

Typically the system will produce between 15 and 30 picks a week and the 70%+ success rate applies only to those picks. In this way SX2 hugely reduces the number of games you have to pick from on any given date. Once a pick is included the system makes no further prediction of the likelihood of one outcome (e.g. the away win) over the other (e.g. the draw) but does give you a further indication of form using the 3-star rating system (see below).

There are 2 internet sites—a desktop site (for PC’s, laptops & tablets) and a mobile one (for all smartphones)

Ways of using System X2?

You can use the system in 2 main ways:

1. Back both of the outcomes forecast in a pick, both the away win and the draw. This method of betting (sometimes known as “hedging”) increases the chances of winning but decreases the potential return
2. Use your own judgement to decide which of the two outcomes forecast have, in your opinion, the better chance of success and back just that one. This is a more traditional method of betting on football and offers better returns than method 1 but decreases the chances of winning compared with the first way.

To increase the potential return on a bet SX2 recommends betting in accumulators – doubles, trebles or fourfolds. There are 3 main ways you can bet accumulators using system picks:

1. Back both of the outcomes in several picks as doubles, trebles or fourfolds. This is the most likely to bring a return as you'll be backing both the away win and the draw in your double, treble or fourfold.
2. Use your own judgement to decide which of the two outcomes forecast (in each of the picks) have, in your opinion, the better chance of success and back just that outcome as a traditional double, treble or fourfold.
3. Mix it up – back both outcomes in one or more of the picks and use your judgement to back just one outcome in one or more picks in a mixed double, treble or fourfold (e.g. back both outcomes in Match A and double that with just one of the outcomes in Match B to make an SX2 mixed double).

Resources

To help you SX2 provides 4 main tools – the Archive of system picks for all active leagues, the 3 star rating system, the Returns Calculator & the Leagues Summary.

The Archive

You can use the SX2 archive to check out the previous record of a given team within the picks. That is to say, how a given team has fared for any other time it's been selected as a pick, either as the home team (i.e. forecast to drop points at home) or as the away team (i.e. forecast to pick up points away from home). The Archive is fully searchable.

The 3-star rating system

SX2 offers an indication of the form analysis of a given pick using a 3-star rating system. There are two 3-star ratings for picks, both of which compare the form of the home team with the form of the away team. The first is an indication using a comparison between both teams overall form for the current season, the second an indication using a comparison between both teams recent form for the season. (NB the number of matches involved in calculating the second indication is an SX2 secret and varies from league to league)

Remember all predictions are for the away win or a draw (i.e. home team to drop points). Odds shown are from oddschecker.com and will vary from bookmaker to bookmaker.

The Returns Calculator

The Returns Calculator (currently unavailable on the mobile version) can be used to calculate what the returns will be on your accumulator, depending on which of the outcomes in a given pick turn out to be correct.

The Leagues Summary

SX2 provides an ongoing constantly updated summary of the current success rate of every league being picked from, showing both overall success rate and last 14 days success rate. This will give you a much better idea of how things are currently running with the system picks.

The Naps Competition

Being a subscriber means you can also take part in the ongoing naps competitions—SX2’s own version of “virtual” betting where you choose 2 picks per week from the list and, depending on success, accumulate “virtual” winnings to compete with all other SX2 subscribers.

The competitions run all year round including a year-long one and carry various prizes
